ORDER

13 Defendant filed a notice indicating that he desired to appear unshackled at upcoming 14 hearings based on United States v. Sanchez-Gomez, 859 F.3d 649, 666 (9th Cir.) (en banc), cert.
15 granted 138 S. Ct. 543 (2017), which held that a criminal defendant has a Fifth Amendment right 16 to appear in court unshackled unless an individualized examination indicates that physical 17 restraints are the least restrictive means of furthering a compelling government interest, i.e., 18 courtroom security. The Court finds that physical restraints are the least restrictive means of 19 furthering the compelling government interest of courtroom security. As noted by the Magistrate 20 Judge, there is no combination of conditions short of restraint that will reasonably assure the 21 safety of the community, and there is a serious risk Defendant will endanger the safety of another 22 person or the community based on a history of, inter alia, violence-related arrests, weapons-23 related arrests, and an active protection order.
